homes.me

How we work a lead. Every time.

The homes.me CRM, in the order you will actually use it. Read it once, keep it on your phone, and you will never lose a lead again.

START HERE

Four rules. The rest is detail.

If you only remember this page, you will still be one of the good ones.

1 Five minutes. Not ten.

A new lead is yours the second it lands — your phone buzzes and it is on your dashboard. Touch it within 5 minutes or the CRM takes it back and gives it to someone else. That is not a punishment. A lead called in 5 minutes buys; a lead called tomorrow has already spoken to three other brokers.

2 Write the note while you remember it.

Straight after the call, type what they said. Budget, which tower, when they fly in, who really decides. Thirty seconds now saves you the whole conversation again next week — and the CRM moves the card to Attempted Contact by itself when you do.

3 Never leave a lead with no next step.

Every open lead must have a date on it. The CRM asks you for one and you can skip it — but skipped leads land in the No next step tab, and that tab is the money you left on the table.

4 Only quote what is in the system.

Prices, payment plans, handover dates and sizes come from the Projects library. If it is not in there, you do not have it yet — ask, do not guess. A wrong price in writing is a problem that outlives the deal.

The whole job, in one line

Answer fast · write down what they said · always leave a next step.

YOUR DAY

Open the Dashboard. It tells you what to do.

You do not have to decide where to start. The CRM has already worked it out and put it at the top of the screen, in the order that costs most if you ignore it.

FIRST

A lead about to be taken

The 5-minute clock is running. Open it now or it goes back to the pool.

THEN

A promise you broke

You said you would call Tuesday. It is Thursday. These first.

THEN

A hot lead nobody rang

Scored 70 or more. Big budget, ready to buy, still untouched.

THEN

Someone waiting on a reply

They messaged you. You have not answered. They are shopping elsewhere.

Then go to My Leads and work the tabs left to right

Follow-up today	What you promised, due today. Empty by lunch is a good day.
New	Nobody has spoken to them yet. Call, do not message.
Hot	The CRM thinks these are your real buyers. Treat them like it.
Overdue	You are late. Say sorry and ring anyway.
No next step	Open leads with no plan. This is the leak.
All	Everything you own.

Nothing in Follow-up today?

That is not a day off — it is the best hour you will get. Go to Lead pool and press Claim next lead, or open Hot and call the top three.

ONE LEAD, START TO FINISH

Open it. The top of the page tells you where it stands.

Before you dial, read the panel at the top — it says what has happened and what to do next, in one line. Then use the buttons across the top; every one of them records itself, so you never type the same thing twice.

Call

Dials on your phone and logs the attempt. Then it asks how it went — answered, no answer, wrong number.

WhatsApp

Opens the chat with their number already there. The conversation comes back into the CRM inbox.

Call back

They said "ring me Thursday at six". Press this, pick the time, and it will remind you.

Meeting

A viewing or a sales-centre visit. Moves the card to Appointment Scheduled.

Problem

Wrong number, not interested yet, budget is nowhere near. Keeps the lead honest instead of parked.

Won / Lost

Won asks what they reserved. Lost asks why — one tap, and it teaches the system which ads are wasting money.

The note is the part that pays you

"Wants 2BR, sea view, under 2.4M. Wife decides. Back in Dubai on the 12th." That note is worth more in a month than anything else on the screen — and writing it moves a new lead to Attempted Contact for you.

New	Attempted	Engaged	Appointment	Deal sent	Won	Lost
Lead arrives	You tried	They replied	Viewing booked	Offer out	Reserved	With a reason

Cards only move forward. If you need to pull one back, ask your manager — that is deliberate, because a pipeline anyone can rewind is a pipeline nobody believes.

TALKING TO CLIENTS

The inbox, and the 24-hour rule

Every WhatsApp, email and note about a person sits in one thread, so whoever picks it up next can see the whole story.

WhatsApp has a rule nobody can get around

Once a client messages you, you have 24 hours to write whatever you like. After that, Meta only allows approved templates until they write again. The CRM shows you which one you are in: a free text box, or a list of templates. This is not the CRM being difficult — breaking it is how companies get their number banned.

- Someone is already replying? You will see "X is replying…" so two of you never answer the same client twice.
- Email goes out from your own address, and their reply comes back into the thread.
- Internal notes are blue and never reach the client. Say anything you need to.
- Never message someone who asked to stop. The CRM blocks it, and so does the law here.

Sending a client a project

Do not send a brochure PDF and hope. Build a Sales offer: pick the lead, pick the project and the exact units, and the CRM makes a private page for that one client, with the real prices, the payment plan and a deadline on the price hold.

- You get told the moment they open it — and again if they heart a unit or ask a question.
- You can see how long they spent and which part they read. That is your opening line when you ring them.
- Everything on it comes from the Projects library, so the numbers are right.

A client who opened your offer twice is a client you ring today

Not tomorrow. The page tells you the moment it happens.

GOING FASTER

The shortcuts that are worth learning

Learn the first one today. Learn the rest whenever. On a phone, ignore this page entirely — everything has a button.

Anywhere

Ctrl K	Find any lead, screen or action. Start here.
N	Add a lead
/	Search this screen
?	Show every shortcut

On a lead

C	Call them
W	Open WhatsApp
E	Write an email
A	Add a note
S	Set the next step

Jump to a screen — press G, then:

G D	Dashboard
G L	My Leads
G Y	Today's follow-ups
G K	Pipeline board
G M	Inbox
G T	Tasks
G P	Projects
G O	Sales offers
G W	Team Wall

Typing a note? The letters stay letters. Shortcuts never fire while you are writing.

Ask Emir AI — bottom right, every screen

It can see your leads, your chats and the projects, and it only answers about what you are allowed to see. Try asking it, in plain English:

- Which leads should I call first?
- Summarise Ahmed's chat
- 2 bedroom under AED 2M in Dubai
- What should I do today?
- Who have I not called this week?

It never invents a price. If it does not know, it says so.

YOUR NAME ON IT

Your profile, your card, your numbers

Click your name, bottom left. Two minutes here and every client you meet gets a better first impression.

It goes on your business card and the bottom of every email you send. Without one, clients see your initials.

Job title and BRN

Required on anything a client sees. Fill it in once.

Your digital card

Switch it on and you get a link that opens with no app and no login — photo, WhatsApp button, QR code. Send it after every viewing.

A printed card

Design a card to print — three homes.me designs, your details, a PDF the printer can use. Takes two minutes.

Ten badges. Nobody can hand them to you.

Every one is counted from what you actually did — so nobody can give you one for being liked, and nobody can withhold one either.

First deal · Ten deals · Fast hands — reply in under two minutes · Under thirty — reply in under 30 seconds · Seven days running · Thirty days running · Fifty viewings · Tidy desk — a next step on every lead · Note taker · One year

The Team Wall, and how points really work

Points come from outcomes, never activity. Logging a call earns nothing — anyone can log a call. Reaching someone earns, because the client is the witness. A viewing that happened beats one that was booked. Posting earns nothing at all.

Your streak ignores the weekend. Friday to Monday is not a broken streak — nobody here is being told to work Saturday.

LAST PAGE

Six ways to lose a deal in a system built to stop you

- Letting the 5 minutes run out. The lead goes to someone else and the client has already answered another broker.
- Keeping it in your head. If it is not in the note, it did not happen — and when you are on leave, nobody can pick it up.
- Leaving a lead with no next step. It quietly dies in a tab you never open.
- Quoting a price from memory. Prices change weekly. Use the Projects library or ask.
- Sending a brochure instead of an offer. A brochure tells you nothing. An offer tells you the second they open it.
- Messaging someone who said stop. It is the law here, and it puts the company's WhatsApp number at risk.

Three things, every day

Clear Follow-up today. Empty No next step. Ring everything in Hot.
Do that and the rest of this handbook takes care of itself.

Stuck?

Forgot your password	Ask the office to reset it — you set a new one next time you sign in.
A lead looks wrong	Say so straight away. Do not work around it.
Something is missing	Tell Emir. If ten of you hit it, it gets built.
Not sure what to do next	Press ?, or ask Emir AI.
